

IDENTITY THEFT

Identity theft is one of the fastest growing crimes in California. Most cases involve suspects stealing key pieces of someone's identifying information, such as their name, address, date of birth, social security and mother's maiden name and using that information to impersonate the victim, usually for financial gain. Once the suspect obtains the information, he can access the victim's financial accounts, apply for credit cards, purchase automobiles, receive social security benefits and even establish services with utilities and phone companies. Victims can suffer financial ruin and experience trauma and frustration while trying to reclaim their good name.

What to do if someone steals your identity

- Call the police non-emergency line to report the crime
- Keep a log of all your contacts and make copies of all documents.
- Contact all creditors to inform of the crime
- Notify the US Postal Inspector if your mail has been tampered with or stolen
- Alert your banks to flag your accounts to detect any unusual activity
- Call the DMV to make sure another license hasn't been issued in your name

How to protect yourself on the Internet:

- Use caution when disclosing checking account numbers, credit card numbers, or other personal financial data at any website or on-line service.
- When you subscribe to an on-line service, you may be asked to give credit card information. When you enter any interactive service site, beware of con artists who may ask you to "confirm" your enrollment service by disclosing passwords or the credit card account number used. Don't give them out!

How reduce your chances of becoming a victim

- Promptly remove delivered mail from your mailbox.
- Deposit outgoing mail in official mailboxes or at your local post office.
- Never give personal information over the telephone (social security number, date of birth, mother's maiden name, credit card number, or bank PIN code) unless you initiated the phone call.
- Shred unwanted pre-approved credit applications, credit card receipts, bills, and other financial information.
- Order your credit report from the three credit bureaus once a year to check for fraudulent activity or other discrepancies.
- Always take your credit card receipts after transactions.

- Memorize your social security number and all of your passwords.
- Notify your credit card companies and financial institutions in advance of any change of address or phone number.
- Never put your credit card or any other financial account number on a postcard or on the outside of an envelope.
- Report all lost or stolen credit cards immediately.
- Contact the issuer if replacement credit cards are not received.
- Beware of mail or telephone solicitations disguised as promotions offering instant prizes designed solely to obtain your personal or credit card information.
